We ere not at all surprised that this flagran ittempt of the members of the General Council to escape a responsibility resting pon them, and to crad the requirements of law, should create popular indignation.

Heretolore the Council selected the officers

It was their duty to choose, by secret bellot. They were thus embled to pledge themselves to every candidate, and there was no possibility of holding them to account for viola tion of their fulth. And this shield also combined them to prostlints themselves by voting for numerthy men for responsible positions, when they would not dare to per ctiate such outrages, were their votes made blic. For these and other sufficient rea sons, the last Legislature so smended the city charter as to require ell elections by the Genaral Conneil to be made alea coor.

The law on this point is clear and emphatic.
In order to evade it the General Council, after
